

ARIES (March 21-Apr. 19)
When your words fall on deaf ears this week, turn up the volume.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 - May 20)
Oh, man. Do you remember that time in Barbados? OMG! That was so fun.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 21)
Bad news Kid, the world is not your diaper. Time to act like a grownup and do something with your life. Run for political office. Or at least stop sleeping in the same room with your parents.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
As a crab, you should have been able to tell when the sushi had gone bad.

LEO (July 23- Aug. 22)
If you are extremely tired this week, you may find yourself falling asleep at some point.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
Your attempt to pass yourself off as a "high brow intellectual" is pretty laughable considering you're a drunken Irish redneck living on food stamps in Hohenwald.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23)

This week, your cellmates, Honeybun and Chico, will surprise you with a special going away party. Only you're not scheduled for release anytime soon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 21)
Satire is for smart people and the truth is for you. The stars think you are the most stupidest person they have ever met.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Something purple and squishy is making itself at home in your cerebellum. The stars say not to worry, its benign. For now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
This week you'll be vindicated for having what your friends and family have called an "irrational fear of germs" when 3 billion people die from a deadly "Super Flu." Suckers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. If your name isn't Jack, get your ass back to work.

PISCES (Feb. 19- Mar. 20)
You'll celebrate your birthday this week by getting a tattoo or an STD, and maybe a kid. Good luck with that.

BIZARRE OCCURRENCES

Two uniformed men arrived at a public library in Bethesda, Wash. and declared that viewing pornography on the internet was forbidden, reports the Washington Post.

The two men were un-armed officers of the division of Montgomery County's Homeland Security. Their job is to patrol county buildings but not to monitor the use of the Internet in these buildings.

One of the men took issue with what a patron of the library was looking up on the internet and asked the man to step outside.

A librarian calmed down the situation back convincing the two men not to take the issue out side.

The incident ended after local police arrived on the scene.

A Minnesota woman, 19, was arrested in with connection with a fight in which another woman lost her nose.

The fight took place at a party. The rumble resulted in the suspect biting off the nose of the female that she was combating.

Police had to obtain a search warrant to recover the nose so that it might be surgically reattached due to the fact that the home owner's son who was throwing the part refused to open the door when the first officers arrived.

This story was reported by the Twin Cities Pioneer Press.

According to Reuters.com experts are advising in preparation for a possible global flu pandemic that if one is burying a body, it should not be buried close to a septic system.

This report outlined some of the concerns that a person might have if the pandemic overwhelms the local medical system.

Along with the advice on where to bury a body the report also explains how much one might expect to pay for a body bag. The reports reveals that the price of body bags is around twenty bucks but also reminds that after Hurricane Katrina recovery crews had to double bag bodies.

Officers arrested a Wisconsin man during an investigation of stolen items from construction sites reports the San Francisco Chronicle.

Jeffrey Stevens Laufer pled guilty to charges of theft explaining that his obsession with door knobs led to his stealing spree.

Laufer explained that along with the door knobs that he stole that he would take other items so that it might look like a normal theft.

Judge Joseph McCormack sentenced Laufer to three-years in prison to overcome his addiction to door knobs.

Italian scientists provided ecstasy to lab rats and then created the rats a rave to attend according to BBC news.

The researchers conducted the experiment to learn more about the effect of loud music have on the brain while under the influence of the drug.

The experiment revealed that loud music prolonged the effects of ecstasy for up to five days. The project also gave proof that being exposed to loud music while under the influence of ecstasy will worsen a users comedown.

Denver prosecutors charged Shaun Ellis, a local school worker, with second-degree assault with a deadly weapon after he reportedly shocked a student with a Taser.

The incident happened as a result of the student being accused of tripping a female student in the hallway.

Ellis supposedly called the student out of class then took him to an empty auditorium where he sat the boy down and tased him in the neck reported the Rocky Mountain News.

The student then told Ellis to stop which Ellis responded to by using the Taser on the student again. The second time the taser was reportedly used on the boy's right arm.

It is unclear why Ellis needed the Taser at school.

According to the Houston Chronicle, a burglar in Fort Worth Tex. left his victim a birthday note.

The manager of Linens n' Things found that his store had been broken into but that the burglar who had broken into his store left a note reading "Happy B-Day, From Ur friendly Rooftop Boogler."

This misspelled note was left in the store break room near to a half eaten birthday cake on a bulletin board.